K + K = 120 WORKSHOP

Dedicated to László Kálmán and András Kornai on the occasion of their 60th birthdays

18 December 2017, 11:00 – 18:00

Venue: Research Institute for Linguistics, Hungarian Academy of Sciences

13 Teréz körút Budapest (temporary address), Lecture Room 108

11:00 – 11:10 Introduction

11:10 – 11:30 Márton Makrai (RIL HAS Budapest): Do multi-sense word embeddings learn more senses?

11:30 – 11:50 Judit Ács (SZTAKI HAS & BME Budapest), Dávid Nemeskey (SZTAKI HAS Budapest), and Gábor Recski (BME Budapest): Building word embeddings from dictionary definitions

11:50 – 12:10 Angelika Kiss (U. Toronto): On biased questions and highlighted propositions

12:10 – 12:30 Beáta Gyuris (RIL HAS Budapest): Rising declaratives and their Hungarian counterparts

12:30 – 14:00 lunch break

14:00 – 14:20 Maik Gibson (SIL International): Does literacy no longer need an institution to remain sustainable? Some reflections on the impact of texting and messaging

14:20 – 14:40 Tamás Biró (ELTE Budapest): From Harmonic Grammar to Optimality Theory: The strict domination limit

14:40 – 15:00 Michael Bukatin (HERE Technologies) and Jon Anthony (Boston College): Dataflow matrix machines and V-values: a bridge between programs and neural nets (video presentation)

15:00 – 15:20 Anssi Yli-Jyrä (U. Helsinki): The regular universe of language models and its continuing expansion

15:20 – 15:40 coffee break

15:40 – 16:00 Paul Dekker (U. Amsterdam): PROPOSITIONS and propositions

16:00 – 16:20 Marcus Kracht (U. Bielefeld): Independence is not so trivial

16:20 – 18:00 short presentations by Márton András Baló, Tibor Beke, László Fejes, Gábor Prószéky, Péter Rebrus, Dániel Vásárhelyi, and Zsófia Zvolenszky, among others